Interment of James Smedley (deceased)

Following the interment of the late James Smedley in Fenny Bentley Churchyard, there was an opinion expressed by two people in the village that this had taken place in the wrong grave. In case there is any future dispute I have written the facts of the case here.

James Smedley was interred on 7 May 1986 and the grave was a re-opening next but one to that of Joyce Stone, which is the only one with a stone in the bottom row of the churchyard nearest the lychgate. The grave is the one pointed out by members of his family as that of the late Ethel Smedley, his wife, buried in March 1977. It was also identified as being that of Ethel Smedley by the late Bill Adams, former Churchwarden and gravedigger, and was subsequently marked by myself on the plan of the churchyard.

The Church Burial Register lists the following between the interment of Joyce Stone and Ethel Smedley:-

Sidney Mugglestone - known to be in the next grave (with his wife who died in July 1978)

(James Coates, cremation)

Cicely Ball, presumably buried elsewhere with her husband who died in Sept 1973.

It would therefore seem logical that the next grave in the row to Sidney Mugglestone would be that of Ethel Smedley.

The gravedigger was asked to read the plate of the existing coffin when he opened the grave, but unfortunately he was not directly over it and was unable to do so.

Those who claimed the interment was in the wrong grave said that Ethel Smedley was buried further along the row on the Church side of Peggy Wilson. The weight of the evidence suggests that this claim is wrong and I decided to ignore it.
